

2021 Compliance Webinar

Unveiling the Final Health Coverage Transparency Rules

Please Note: The webinar date has changed.

Under the new health coverage transparency rules, non-grandfathered group health plans and health insurers will be required to comply with new disclosure rules aimed at providing health plan participants (and health care consumers in general) with cost and quality information on a variety of health care services, to help them make more informed health care choices.

The regulations adopted during the latter days of the outgoing Trump administration (in response to a 2019 Presidential executive order) would require non-grandfathered health and prescription drug plans to electronically publish pricing information. Providers and health care plans will be required to comply starting in 2022, if not overturned by the new administration.

Further, the “No Surprises Act”, enacted as part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2021, will require health insurers and group health plans to electronically report prescription drug trends and costs on an annual basis, beginning in 2022.

This one-hour session is intended to clarify these pricing transparency rules and their status, including:

- Who is subject to the rules?
- What information must be disclosed and how?
- Timing and next steps.
